ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my sincere thanks and gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. A.L. AGARWAL, Associate Professor of Economics in the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, Indian Institute of Technology, Delhi. This work could never have come into being without his invaluable encouragement and guidance.

Many thanks are due to the following friends and colleagues who helped me at various stages.

- Officials of the Railway Board, especially Mr. K.K. Chaudhary, Jt. Director (Traffic Commercial) and Mr. A.K. Goyal, Jt. Director (Planning) for providing tons of information and data.
- Mr. A.K. Makkar, Senior Research Assistant in the Department of Humanities and Social Science, IIT Delhi for immense support and keen interest displayed in my work.
- Mr. Sunil Saxena, IIT Delhi, for computer work.
- Dr. S. Mitra (Indus Valley Information Systems) for doing all the elegant graphs.

- Librarians and staff of the libraries of Planning Commission, Central Statistical Organisation, Railway Board, Delhi School of Economics, Faculty of Management Studies, IIT Delhi, IIT Madras, Indian Statistical Institute, Indian Institute of Foreign Trade, British Council and American Center libraries for making available many books and journals.
- Mr. S.K. Sharma and his team at PRINTWAYS typing and photocopying centre.

I would like to convey special thanks to my father, Dr. R.M. MATHUR for moral support and encouragement, my uncle, Mr. KRANTI KUMAR for assistance with the structuring of the thesis and most of all my mother-in-law for being a source of constant help. Last but not the least I need to acknowledge the contribution of my husband, Mr. ANUP MATHUR, for being at my side in the most trying moments and my little daughter who had to bear with my absence.
