

Wage Determination In Indian Industries

A Macro-Economic Approach

By

Mrs. RASHMI AGRAWAL

DEPARTMENT OF HUMANITIES & SOCIAL SCIENCES

Submitted

in fulfilment of the requirements of the Degree of

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

to the

INDIAN INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, DELHI

FEBRUARY, 1986

C E R T I F I C A T E

Certified that Mrs. Rashmi Agrawal, who was permitted to work for her Ph.D. Degree in Economics of the Indian Institute of Technology, Delhi, on the problem entitled "WAGE DETERMINATION IN INDIAN INDUSTRIES : A MACRO-ECONOMIC APPROACH" has faithfully carried out her study under my guidance and supervision and that the accompanying Thesis, which she is submitting, is her genuine work.

Mrs. Rashmi Agrawal has completed necessary course work and put in the required attendance in this Department.

(Dr. A.L. AGARWAL)
Assistant Professor
Dept. of Humanities & Social Sciences,
Indian Institute of Technology,
Delhi (India)

February 10, 1986

A C K N O W L E D G E M E N T

I wish to express my sincere thanks and deep sense of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr.A.L.Agarwal, Assistant Professor of Economics in the Dept. of Humanities & Social Sciences of the Indian Institute of Technology, Delhi, for his sustained help, valuable direction, guidance, constant encouragement throughout the course of the study and also preparation of this manuscript.

I am obliged to Dr.L.Prasad, Professor, Dept.of Business Economics, University of Delhi for his kind help and critical suggestions for the improvement of earlier two drafts. Thanks are also due to Dr.M.S.Bhatia, Director of Economics & Statistics, Ministry of Agriculture for his keen interest and support in the successful pursuit of this research project.

Special thanks are due to the librarians and staff of the libraries of Ministry of Labour, Planning Commission and the Central Statistical Organisation for making available many needed official document. Mrs.Anuradha Gupta, Librarian, Vivekananda Mahila College helped me in procuring a number of books by making special arrangements which were otherwise not available or were difficult to procure. Unstinted cooperation extended to me by the staff and fellow colleagues in the Dept. of Humanities & Social Sciences had been of great help to me. I have much benefitted from the comments and suggestions made by the faculty and colleagues in the Seminar held earlier on my topic.

I am to record my deep gratitude to my husband, Shri K.K.Agrawal, a senior Indian Statistical Service Officer, for providing most painstaking and elaborate statistical support despite his otherwise heavy burdens. Besides, he and the family have cheerfully put up with the difficult times during my research work. Equal, if not more, credit must belong to Shri Bhudhar Sharma for his most prompt and excellent typing of the manuscript and the penultimate draft. He and his family had to endure the nuisance of continued day and night typing for months together. However, this heavy burden had to stick to him as there was no substitute to his outstanding efficiency and precision.

I shall be failing in my duty if I do not record my sincere thanks to Mrs.Raj Wadhwa, Principal, Vivekananda Mahila College (University of Delhi) who has been instrumental in my joining IIT, Delhi, for research and has, in addition, taken special pains to inspire and encourage me throughout my research as well as in my career.

Lastly, but not the least, though I had an alround support, some deficiencies have still remained in this study. For them, I am alone responsible.

February 10, 1986

(Rashmi Agrawal)

C O N T E N T S

Chapter	Description	Page
	LIST OF TABLES	(v)-(vi)
	LIST OF DIAGRAMS	(viii)
I	INTRODUCTION	1-32
	The problem	1
	Importance of wages	1
	A critical appraisal of wage theories	3
	Subsistence theory	4
	Wages-fund theory	7
	Marginal productivity theory	8
	Wage share theory	10
	Collective bargaining theory	13
	Conclusion	15
	Review of literature	16
	Need for present study	25
	Scope of study	27
	Objectives of the study	30
	Organization of the study	31
II	CONCEPTS, DATA SOURCES AND METHODOLOGY	33-55
	Some key concepts	33
	(Workers, employees, wages, emoluments, distinction between wages and earnings)
	Data sources	39
	Limitations of data	42
	Methodology	45
	(Tabular analysis, averages, compound growth rate, index numbers, price correction, time series and cross- sectional analysis, t-test, regression analysis, product moment correlation, rank correlation, correlation matrix, partial correlations, Durbin-Watson statistic, coefficient of determination)
III	WAGES AS FACTOR INCOME	56-84
	Evolution of wages as factor income	56
	Categories of factor income	65
	Some hypotheses on wage shares	67
	Forms of income	68
	Wages as factor income	68
	Wages as major purchasing power	73
	Critical importance of the organised sector in wage shares	75
	International comparisons of wage shares	76
	Dual nature of wages: wages as cost	81
	Conclusion	82

Chapter	Description	Page
IV	EMERGENCE OF ORGANISED SECTOR	85-105
	Scope of organised sector	85
	NIC-1970 industrial classification codes	87
	Employment in organised sector	88
	Emergence of organised sector as wage leader	90
	Growth of employment and NDP in organised sector	93
	Indices of growth of organised sector	95
	Future growth of organised sector-forecasting models	97
	Organised sector as a key input of development : experience of other countries	100
	Conclusion	103
V	PRICE EFFECTS AND TRENDS IN REAL WAGES	106-159
	Factor share of wages in national income by sectors at current prices	106
	Removal of price effects: implicit price deflators for GDP	109
	Price deflators for wages	111
	Wage shares at constant prices by industry divisions	113
	Comparison of decade averages of wage shares : current vs. constant prices	115
	Wages and inflation	116
	Inflation and growth	117
	Wage indexation : a theoretical framework (retrospective indexation, indexation at fixed intervals; sliding wage scales, restricted sliding wage scales; indexation with deferred adjustment, limited adjustment, one-way adjustment, flexible adjustment; anticipated indexation; threshold indexation; semi-automatic indexation; indexation based on other factors)	119
	Choice of index	124
	Case for compulsory indexation	130
	Implicit indices of wholesale and retail prices	133
	Analysis of price trends	136
	Trends in real wages	137
	Movement of wages in mining and manufacturing sectors	139
	Models of money wages and prices	142
	Money and real wages in the selected industries	144
	(Highlights of observed trends: inter-industry wage differentials, trends in money wages, trends in real wages)

Chapter	Description	Pages
	Deficiencies in official indices of industrial earnings	151
	Evaluation of the effect of price and time factors on money earnings	156
	Conclusion	157
VI	DETERMINANTS OF WAGES IN INDUSTRIES	160-201
	Data adjustments	160
	Conversion from current to constant prices	162
	Some hypotheses on wage behaviour	164
	Problems of specification and interpretation in the estimated models of wage behaviour	167
	Estimation of models of wage levels:	171
	:Wages in basic industries	175
	:Wages in capital goods industries	178
	:Wage in intermediate goods industries	182
	:Wages in consumer goods industries	184
	Estimation of wage differentials	187
	Wage-employment trade-off	192
	Capital-labour substitution	194
	Wage productivity linkages	196
	Conclusion	199
VII	AUXILIARY WAGE ISSUES	202-239
	Evolution of fringe benefits	204
	Time horizon of fringe benefits	206
	Reasons for growth of fringe benefits	206
	Scope of fringe benefits	207
	Categorisation of fringe benefits	210
	Distinction between fringe benefits and non-wage labour costs	211
	A theoretical wage-benefits model	211
	Limitations of the model	215
	Importance of fringe benefits in labour theory	216
	Hypothesis on 'Consistency of benefits'	217
	'Validity' of consistency hypothesis	218
	Growth of fringe benefits abroad	219
	Indian data on fringe benefits	221
	Distribution of labour costs in Indian industries	222
	Changing pattern of benefits in selected industries	225
	Time dimension in wage payments	230
	Bonus as deferred wage	230
	Spacing of disbursements in selected manufacturing industries	232
	Invisible wages	236
	Conclusion	237

Chapter	Description	Page
VIII	BROAD SETTINGS FOR WAGE POLICY	240-271
	Wage policy as a sub-set of incomes policy	240
	Incomes policy	241
	Scope of an incomes policy	242
	Feasibility of an incomes policy	243
	Objectives of wages, incomes, and prices policies	245
	Concept of a national wage policy	247
	Scope of wage policy	248
	Wage policy a must	248
	Evolution of wage policy in India-	251
	:Pre-independence era	251
	:Post-independence era	253
	Concepts of Minimum, fair and living wages-	257
	:Minimum wages	257
	:Living wages	260
	:Fair wages	261
	An appraisal of minimum needs 'norms'	263
	(Composition of family, exclusion of other earnings, food requirements, clothing, housing, miscellaneous)
	Framing a national wage policy:	272
	need for an institutional arrangement
	Conclusion	273
IX	TOWARDS AN INTEGRATED WAGE POLICY	276-291
	Major components of an integrated wage policy with macro-economic approach	276
	Need for an integrated wage policy	277
	Limitations of the proposed wage policy	278
	Guidelines of an integrated wage policy for Indian industries	279
	Conclusion	288
	SUMMARY	292-301
	ANNEXURE	A1-A10
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	:i:-:xv:

 *